

We're All Gonna Die – The Now Nows

Life is a river we're all floating down
We're all in it together, though, strangely, all alone
But while you're in the water take a look around
The views are spectacular but in the end we all must drown

It's a bummer but it's fine
It's a bastard but it's life
And though it's all turning to shit I suspect it will still shine
In the morning it's bright
When it's dark, we know it's the night
And though it sucks, with a bit of lucks
You might make it through the night

But you're still gonna die

Floating down the river might seem like a lot of fun
It's certainly quite mystical, all the flirting that gets done
But while you may consider the river to be your friend
Remember it's a bitch, it's life – it'll get you in the end

It's a bugger but it's fine
It's a bastard but it's life
And though it's all turning to shit I suspect it will still shine
In the morning it's bright
When it's dark, we know it's the night
And though it sucks, with a bit of lucks
You might make it through the night

But you're still gonna die

We all must die and be forgotten
Cos life is cruel and, brother, death is rotten
See how the living all waste their breath
And see how those dying alone
Are the only ones who truly pray for the dead

Now I could warn you about the dangers
Those rapids and waterfalls
But this is just a nautical existential metaphor
So whether you're a sinner, a saint or in between Free Will don't mean nothing when it's dragging you out to sea

It's a fucker but it's fine
It's a bastard but it's life
And though it's all turning to shit I suspect it will still shine
In the morning it's bright
When it's dark, we know it's the night
And though it sucks, with a bit of lucks
You might make it through the night

But you're still gonna die

We're all gonna die, la la la la la la la la...

But hopefully not tonight

© 2014 Martin Waterhouse / The Now Nows. All Rights Reserved.